

Global Migration Group Side Event In Contribution to the 2016 UN Summit for Refugees and Migrants

Organized by UNDP

Development approaches to migration and displacement - supporting national and local capacities to prepare for and respond to large movements

13 September 2016, 3:00-7:00 PM

Conference Room 8, UN Secretariat, New York

Background

On 19 September 2016, the UN General Assembly will host a high-level summit to address large movements of refugees and migrants. The Global Migration Group (GMG), an interagency cooperation mechanism consisting of 17 entities of the United Nations system and the International Organization for Migration (IOM), is organizing a series of interactive, multi-stakeholder meetings to assist Member States and civil society in preparing for the 19 September event. The meetings, chaired by Member States, are informal and interactive in nature, providing ample space for an interactive dialogue with the panelists.

Strengthening responsibility sharing for refugees

In addition to the draft New York Declaration for Refugees and Migrants, the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development fully recognizes migration and displacement as a core development consideration. The 2030 Agenda has introduced a range of specific targets on migration and it pledges to 'leave no one behind', including refugees, internally displaced persons and host communities.

The SDGs also underscore the need for development investments in preventing and resolving protracted displacement. There is widespread and growing recognition that migration and displacement are not merely short-term issues; their costs, benefits and dynamics are part of longer term global trends. This requires efforts to look together into effective and sustainable solutions through joint approaches of development and humanitarian actors, together with state authorities at both local and national levels. This meeting in the series will therefore focus on advancing development approaches to migration and displacement.

Objective

The objective of this side event is to highlight the importance of development approaches in conjunction with humanitarian responses to address large movements of refugees and migrants at both local and national levels. The side event aims to provide concrete examples of support provided by the UN system to national counterparts at regional, country and local levels. In doing so, the event aims to contribute to the UN Summit for Refugees and Migrants, to be hosted on 19 September 2016. Key recommendations from the event will feed into the various Summit Round Table discussions to address the implications of the Summit outcomes for future work.
